

Suffolk Writes

LIVE + VIRTUAL INTERACTIVE WORKSHOP APRIL 24 AT 12:45 PM

Schedule of Events

- 12:45-1:15 Welcome & Intro to Speakers
- 1:15-1:45 Anatomy of a Novel- Write for Your Reader
- 1:50-2:20 Indie or Traditional? Your Path to Publishing
- 2:25-2:55 Non-Fiction Essentials
- BREAK
- 3:15-3:45 Co-Authoring- Perks and Pitfalls
- 3:50-4:20 Marketing + Giveaways
- 4:25-4:55 Editing Like a Pro: The Writer's Edge
- 5:00-5:30 POETRY Lifestyle or Career
- 5:55-6:05 The Short of It-Short Form Writing Tips
- 6:10- Social Networking Happy Hour

Meet the Writers

E. AYERS

CHRIS MATSON

MIKO MARSH

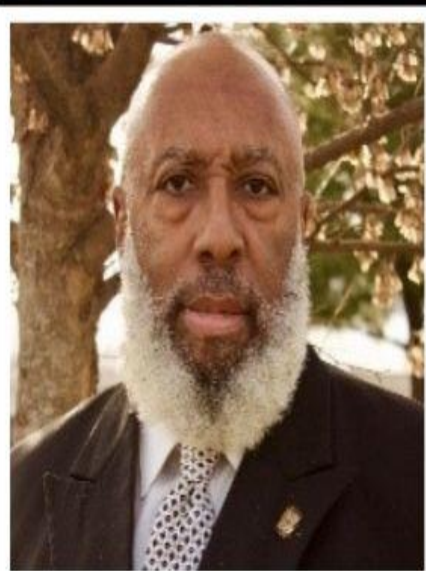

KIMBERLY C.

PATTY POET

VM ROBERTS

NATHAN RICHARDSON

GINA

Suffolk Writes: Interactive LIVE Workshop

Meet the Writers

E. Ayers (Bev, to her friends) is a true believer in love at first sight because it happened to her. Bev writes a slice-of-life novel, the romantic slice in two character's lives. In today's world, most people have careers and responsibilities. Figuring out how to blend two separate lives into one can be a huge dilemma. No one is perfect. She brings that into what she writes. When she's not writing, Bev is spending time with her two dogs and waiting on his royal highness the cat.

Kimberly C. Huther loves the English language, despite all its foibles and quirks. With more than ten years of professional editing experience, Kim has over 2,500 published books to her credit. Her current client list includes 40 successful authors—two of whom achieved bestselling status. When she's not slaving in front of the monitor, Kim loves to do crossword puzzles, and is the mother of a teenager, who keeps her on her toes!

Miko Marsh is a mother, author, caregiver, instructor, and motivator. She has a degree in social services, college certification in Early Childhood Care Education, and hands-on experience working in behavioral facilities. She ghost-writes for various ministries, organizations, and businesses. Miko's writing areas include Bible-based topics, caregiving, personal growth, and interpersonal communications. However, she often writes stories to amuse herself, just because she loves to laugh.

Chris Matson has survived former incarnations as geologist, fisherman, engineer, cook, surveyor and port consultant. He lived much of his life in Colorado, California and Virginia, but he has also spent time in Moscow, Bogota, Kerala, and Dakar. When he is not writing, he enjoys walking, tinkering, and "... simply messing about in boats."

Patty Poet has been writing short form for most of her life. Currently, she writes on-line articles that appear in Wanderwisdom.com, Delishably.com, and Hobbylark.com. A regular contributor to Hubpages.com, she is recognized in the top five percent of site's contributing authors. She also writes feature articles for newspapers, an exercise column, historical research, and tips for Senior citizens.

Nathan M. Richardson is a published author, performance poet and Frederick Douglass Historian. His work has been widely re-published in anthologies, magazines and newspapers such as the Channel Marker, The Cupola, Coastal Virginia Magazine and the Washington Post. Mr. Richardson is now in the seventh year of presenting his acclaimed living history portrayal of Frederick Douglass. Nathan teaches a variety of workshops for emerging writers.

VM Roberts' passion is writing. As an author, she has published two memoirs, nine family dramas, and one political suspense novel. The Suffolk native, is a healthcare administrator by trade. She holds an MPH in Epidemiology, an MBA in Health Administration, and a BA in Journalism.

Gina says she can't explain where her stories come from or why some paranormal aspect always seems to find its way inside her stories. She tells us that she finds inspiration everywhere, and among other genres, she enjoys a great romance novel, especially when it has lots of suspense-filled pages. And, after reading any one of her novels, she believes you'll be able to guess that she adores romantic comedies, which is why you'll also find plenty of humor.
